Amazigh Arts in Morocco Cynthia Becker, 2014-04-15 In southeastern Morocco around the oasis of Tafilalet the Ait Khabbash people weave brightly colored carpets embroider indigo head coverings paint their faces with saffron and wear ornate jewelry Their extraordinarily detailed arts are rich in cultural symbolism they are always breathtakingly beautiful and they are typically made by women Like other Amazigh Berber groups but in contrast to the Arab societies of North Africa the Ait Khabbash have entrusted their artistic responsibilities to women Cynthia Becker spent years in Morocco living among these women and through family connections and female fellowship achieved unprecedented access to the artistic rituals of the Ait Khabbash The result is more than a stunning examination of the arts themselves it is also an illumination of women's roles in Islamic North Africa and the many ways in which women negotiate complex social and religious issues One of the reasons Amazigh women are artists is that the arts are expressions of ethnic identity and it follows that the guardians of Amazigh identity ought to be those who literally ensure its continuation from generation to generation the Amazigh women Not surprisingly the arts are visual expressions of womanhood and fertility symbols are prevalent Controlling the visual symbols of Amazigh identity has given these women power and prestige Their clothing tattoos and jewelry are public identity statements such public artistic expressions contrast with the stereotype that women in the Islamic world are secluded and veiled But their role as public identity symbols can also be restrictive and history French colonialism the subsequent rise of an Arab dominated government in Morocco and the recent emergence of a transnational Berber movement has forced Ait Khabbash women to adapt their arts as their people adapt to the contemporary world By framing Amazigh arts with historical and cultural context Cynthia Becker allows the reader to see the full measure of these fascinating artworks , Auditing Raymond N. Amber VanDerwarker, Tanya M. Peres, 2010-01-22 In recent years scholars have emphasized the need for more holistic subsistence analyses and collaborative publications towards this endeavor have become more numerous in the literature However there are relatively few attempts to qualitatively integrate zooarchaeological animal and paleoethnobotanical plant data and even fewer attempts to quantitatively integrate these two types of subsistence evidence Given the vastly different methods used in recovering and quantifying these data not to mention their different preservational histories it is no wonder that so few have undertaken this problem Integrating Zooarchaeology and Paleoethnobotany takes the lead in tackling this important issue by addressing the methodological limitations of data integration proposing new methods and innovative ways of using established methods and highlighting case studies that successfully employ these methods to shed new light on ancient foodways The volume challenges the perception that plant and animal foodways are distinct and contends that the separation of the analysis of archaeological plant and animal remains sets up a false dichotomy between these portions of the diet In advocating qualitative and quantitative data integration the volume establishes a clear set of methods for 1 determining the suitability of data integration in any particular case and 2 carrying out an integrated qualitative or quantitative approach
