Designing For The Third Age Architecture Redefined For A Generation Of Active Agers Architectural Design:

Designing for the Third Age Lorraine Farrelly, 2014-04-28 Highlights how architecture needs to rise to the challenge of a demographic revolution As people sixty five and older constitute an ever increasingly proportion of population in most industrialized nations the design of housing and other built provisions needs to be rethought in order to accommodate this ever expanding ageing population How can far reaching architectural solutions play a key part by creating sustainable cities for the changing profile of the population reducing models of dependency for care and transport while creating opportunities for recreation leisure and work This issue reflects on the population challenges facing Europe Australia North America and Asia offering innovative responses to these problems on a practical and speculative level Addresses a major social issue for architects designers and students Includes contributions from Arup Global Foresight Innovation Baroness Greengross President of the International Longevity Centre UK Matthias Hollwich of HWKN Jerry Maltz of AIANY Design for Aging David Birbeck of Design for Homes Edward Denison Research Associate at University College London Kathryn Firth of the London Legacy Development Corporation Richard Mazuch of IBI Nightingale architect Walter Menteth author Jayne Merkel architect writer and researcher Terri Peters Anjali Raje Executive Director of International Longevity Centre India and architect Radhika Vaidya Robert Schmidt of the Adaptable Futures research group at Loughborough University Sally Stewart of Glasgow School of Architecture Mark Taylor of The University of Newcastle and Katherine Wilkinson of RMIT Features architects including Amie Gross Architects Ariktema Dattner Architects HWKN Deborah Gans Gans Studio JJW Architects Henning Larsen Architects Michael Maltzan Architecture nARCHITECTS Nord Architects PRP Architects and Yanmin Zhou

Multigenerational Family Living Edgar Liu, Hazel Easthope, 2016-11-03 Multigenerational living where more than one generation of related adults cohabit in the same dwelling is recognized as a common arrangement amongst many Asian Middle Eastern and Southern European cultures but this arrangement is becoming increasingly familiar in many Western societies Much Western research on multigenerational households has highlighted young adults delayed first home leaving the result of difficult economic prospects and the prolonged adolescence of generation Y This book shows that the causes and results of this phenomenon are more complex The book sheds fresh light on a range of structural and social drivers that have led multigenerational families to cohabit and the ways in which families negotiate the dynamic interactions amongst these drivers in their everyday lives It critically examines factors such as demographics the environment culture and family considerations of identity health care and well being revealing how such factors reflect and are reflected by a retracting welfare state and changing understandings of families in an increasingly mobile world Based on a series of qualitative and quantitative research projects conducted in Australia the book provides an interdisciplinary examination of intergenerational cohabitation that explores a variety of concerns and experiences It will appeal to scholars across the social sciences with interests in housing demographics and the sociology of the family Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population

Victor Regnier, 2018-08-06 Longer lifespans and the needs of the oldest old are challenging the senior living industry to find bold and compassionate solutions to combine programs and services with housing Victor Regnier's latest research provides a thoughtful and insightful roadmap that arrays new ways of thinking from small scale settings to community based options International case studies offer possible solutions with the best thinking from around the globe all with Vic's unique perspective of extracting themes and concepts that are broadly applicable and essential to addressing the needs of those that live on life's fragile edge David Hoglund FAIA Supporting the independence of the oldest old is a tough problem Victor Regnier addresses in his latest book on aging and housing Like previous work Victor relies on the best practices of northern Europeans to outline a three prong approach First providing extremely comprehensive home care services in an apartment for life setting Second reforming the conventional nursing home by exploring small group style accommodations Third combining new technology with community based services to age in place Case studies document the experiences of others in making these programs work here and abroad The magnitude of the 90 and 100 population increases in the next 50 years make it clear how important it is to address this concern today Edward Steinfeld Darch The movement of health care from the institution to the home is a theme that Regnier identifies as one of the most important lessons in rethinking the issue of how to support the ever growing and increasingly aged older population here and abroad He examines simple but profound approaches we can take in making long term care a more humane proposition Familiar themes like humanizing technology and optimizing the impact of the natural environment are brought together with clear policy thinking about what we need to do The timing is good because the impact of this growing segment of society will have major repercussions on health care for the next 50 70 years Stephan Verderber Ph D A comprehensive guide to designing housing for the world's aging population The dilemma of helping older people maintain their independence through better housing with services is growing This book presents innovative solutions for those who create and provide housing for the world's increasingly longer living population By focusing on three specific housing and service arrangements it offers alternatives that provide greater freedom of choice than the current living arrangements that exist today It presents selected examples of housing and service solutions from the US Sweden Denmark and the Netherlands to stimulate thinking about the possibilities of community based service models Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population looks at a trio of options for housing the oldest old the Dutch Apartment Condo for Life Model AFL decentralized Small Green Houses and the provision of enhanced personal and health care for people who want to stay in their own home It offers unique and eye opening chapters covering what older people want what age changes affect independence demographics and living arrangements how long term care is defined concepts and objectives for housing the frail care giving and management practices that avoid an institutional lifestyle innovative case studies programs that encourage staying at home with service assistance therapeutic use of outdoor spaces how technology will help people stay independent and more Based on the author's numerous conversations with other experts as well as his examinations of high quality settings from Northern Europe and the US Building case study examples showcase innovative and compassionate solutions In depth coverage of three major systems that work Examines successful programs such as PACE Friendly Cities NORC and the Village to Village Network to demonstrate the progress made in helping older frail people stay in their own homes for as long as possible Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population Redefining Assisted Living for the Mentally and Physically Frail is an important book for those who create design and manage assisted living and skilled nursing facilities as well as for those who set policies regarding health and personal care for our world s aging society

Why Architects Matter Flora Samuel,2018-03-09 Why Architects Matter examines the key role of research led ethical architects in promoting wellbeing sustainability and innovation It argues that the profession needs to be clear about what it knows and the value of what it knows if it is to work successfully with others Without this clarity the marginalization of architects from the production of the built environment will continue preventing clients businesses and society from getting the buildings that they need The book offers a strategy for the development of a twenty first century knowledge led built environment including tools to help evidence develop and communicate that value to those outside the field Knowing how to demonstrate the impact and value of their work will strengthen practitioners ability to pitch for work and access new funding streams This is particularly important at a time of global economic downturn with ever greater competition for contracts and funds driving down fees and making it imperative to prove value at every level Why Architects Matter straddles the spheres of Practice Management and Law History and Theory Design Housing Sustainability Health Marketing and Advice for Clients bringing them into an accessible whole The book will therefore be of interest to professional architects architecture students and anyone with an interest in our built environment and the role of professionals within it

Housing for Hope and Wellbeing Flora Samuel,2022-12-20 Housing and neighbourhoods have an important contribution to make to our wellbeing and our sense of our place in the world This book written for a lay audience with policy makers firmly in mind offers a useful and intelligible overview of our housing system and why it is in crisis while acting as an important reminder of how housing contributes to social value defined as community health self development and identity It argues for a holistic digital map based planning system that allows for the sensitive balancing of the triple bottom line of sustainability social environmental and economic value It sets out a vision of what our housing system could look like if we really put the wellbeing of people and planet first as well as a route map on how to get there Written primarily from the point of view of an architect the account weaves across industry practice and academia cross cutting disciplines to provide an integrated view of the field The book focusses on the UK housing scene but draws on and provides lessons for housing cultures across the globe Illustrated throughout with case studies this is the go to book for anyone who wants to look at housing in a holistic way

Constructions Michael Hensel,Christian Hermansen Cordua,2015-05-04 The current trend for constructing experimental structures is now an international phenomenon It has been taken up worldwide by design professionals researchers educators and students alike There exist however distinct and significant tendencies within this development that require further investigation This issue of AD takes on this task by examining one of the most promising trajectories in this area the rise of intensely local architectures In his seminal essay of 1983 Kenneth Frampton redefined Critical Regionalism by calling for an intensely local approach to architectural design Today Frampton s legacy is regaining relevance for a specific body of work in practice and education focused on the construction of experimental structures Could this ultimately provide the seeds for a compelling and alternative approach to sustainable design Contributors include Barbara Ascher Peter Buchanan Karl Otto Ellefsen David Jolly Monge Lisbet Harboe David Leatherbarrow Areti Markopoulou Philip Nobel Rodrigo Rubio S ren S S rensen Defne Sunguro lu Hensel Featured practices Renzo Piano Building Workshop Rintala Eggertsson SHoP Studio Mumbai TYIN tegnestue UAE and the Gulf George Katodrytis, Kevin Mitchell, 2015-03-30 At the end of the 20th century Dubai attracted international media attention as the world sought to make sense of the city s extraordinary growth Exuberant projects such as the Burj Arab the Burj Khalifa and the Palm Islands attracted investment in dreams to transform the region While the global financial crisis kept dreams from becoming reality this issue of AD seeks to present a view of architecture and urbanism in the United Arab Emirates UAE and other states in the wider Gulf Cooperation Council GCC at a time when greater economic stability promises new beginnings The issue presents examples of architecture that transcends preoccupation with fabricating images and traces the process of making contemporary Gulf cities from material tectonics to large scale masterplans By presenting the architecture of UAE and the Gulf within the context of broader regional developments and global trends it highlights how projects in the UAE Qatar Kuwait and Saudi Arabia have contributed to unprecedented urban growth while emphasising the continuing environmental challenges of building in the region In addition to highlighting various sustainable initiatives intended to counteract these challenges the issue also explores how computational design and new technologies are being innovatively employed to mitigate the impact of arid climates Contributors include Ameena Ahmadi Kelly Hutzell Varkki Pallathucheril Todd Reisz Rami el Samahy Terri Meyer Boake Jeffrey Willis International architects Foster Partners Frank Gehry HOK IM Pei Legoretta Legoretta Jean Nouvelle Reiser Umemoto Allies and Morrison Regional architects AGi Kuwait DXB lab UAE X Architects UAE Empathic Space Christian Derix, Åsmund Izaki, 2014-10-27 In recent years questions of space have gained renewed momentum in architecture and urban design as adaptation densification and sustainable regeneration have become an increasing priority While most computing based design tends to emphasise the formal aspects of architecture overlooking space and its users the original computational design approaches first spearheaded in the UK in the 1960s and 1970s tended to be focused on behavioural and occupational patterns Over the last decade a new generation of design research has emerged that has started to implement and validate previous investigations into spatial computation aiming to understand how to design spatial configurations based on user experiences This revives an interest in the

Design for Aging American Institute of Architects,1985 Doing Disability Differently Jos Boys,2014-05-23 This ground breaking book aims to take a new and innovative view on how disability and architecture might be connected Rather than putting disability at the end of the design process centred mainly on compliance it sees disability and ability as creative starting points for the whole design process It asks the intriguing question can working from dis ability actually generate an alternative kind of architectural avant garde To do this Doing Disability Differently explores how thinking about dis ability opens up to critical and creative investigation our everyday social attitudes and practices about people objects and space argues that design can help resist and transform underlying and unnoticed inequalities introduces architects to the emerging and important field of disability studies and considers what different kinds of design thinking and doing this can enable asks how designing for everyday life in all its diversity can be better embedded within contemporary architecture as a discipline offers examples of what doing disability differently can mean for architectural theory education and professional practice aims to embed into architectural practice attitudes and approaches that creatively and constructively refuse to perpetuate body norms or the resulting inequalities in access to and support from built space Ultimately this book suggests that re addressing architecture and disability involves nothing less than re thinking how to design for the everyday occupation of space more generally Designing with Downsizers Adam Park,Friederike Ziegler,Sarah Wigglesworth,2016 This report from The University of Sheffield DWELL Project Designing for Wellbeing in Environments for Later Life captures some of the findings from a three year research project co produced with older residents in Sheffield Funded by the EPSRC led Lifelong Health and Wellbeing cross council research programme the multi disciplinary DWELL project sought to explore third agers housing aspirations to generate a series of design proposals using a co design process The findings reveal that many households would be keen to downsize in later life if there were more attractive options available in the right locations The research showed strong demand for better quality and more adaptable homes where people can continue to live and socialise in mixed age communities
