Development Of The Social Sciences In The United States And Canada The Role Of Philanthropy Contemporary Studies In Social And Policy Issues In Education:

Development of the Social Sciences in the United States and Canada Theresa M. Richardson, Donald

Fisher, 1999-03-23 This collection originated in and is an interdisciplinary dialogue The subject of conversation is the social sciences in the twentieth century and the role of large scale philanthropy using Rockefeller philanthropy in particular as a case study The intention is to draw a much needed integration of historical theoretical and philosophical perspectives on the development of modern knowledge systems and their mentors The dialogue builds on the work of earlier historians and philosophers of science as well as pioneers in the study of philanthropy Earlier descriptive studies have given way in the past 20 years to the more analytic stance taken by the authors represented in this volume Rethinking Professional Issues in Special Education James L. Paul, Carolyn D. Lavelly, Ann Cranston-Gingras, Ella L. Taylor, 2002-07-30 Special educators are facing new challenges at the beginning of the 21st century as public education is being reformed by a vision focusing on measurable student outcomes The future course of the field will be shaped by the policy and programmatic responses to several issues including demographic changes in student populations a lack of certified special education teachers criticism in the public media for the rising costs of services and debates about the preferred philosophy of service delivery for students with disabilities Additional chapters discuss university school collaboration charter schools disability studies school violence disproportionality in placement male African American teachers and ethics This book has been written out of a context of research and program development activities with public schools over the past decade in one of the largest Colleges of Education in a diverse metropolitan area in the country The issues selected for analysis and the perspective guiding those analyses grew out of this work and out of a national Delphi study of the views of parents and constituent organizations and leading researchers teacher educators and policy makers in Special Education Relative/Outsider Kendra R.

Wallace, 2001-05-30 The author explores the ethnic and racial identity formation among high school and college students of racially mixed heritage The portraits in this book provide a thorough examination of the dynamic ethnic and racial lives of a multifaceted and growing segment of students Unlike most recent projects on mixed heritage people which are narrow in scope and focus on one set of backgrounds e g black and white or black and Japanese the subjects in this study represent a vast array of heritages including those of dual minority ancestry The students stories speak volumes about the uneven nature of racial and ethnic experience within and across traditional communities in contemporary U S society Unlike studies analyzing broad intergroup processes this work begins by examining the cultural dynamics of the home contributing valuable insights into the otherwise invisible lives of mixed heritage families Processes of enculturation and discourse acquisition are considered in the development of ethnic identity The book also helps to frame how changes within the U S racial ecology lead many recently mixed heritage individuals to see themselves as occupying un common ground Finally this work offers recommendations for educators concerned with creating school contexts that are critically supportive of human diversity

A Race Against Time James G. Cibulka, William L. Boyd, 2003-03-30 We are in a race against time to save urban children from educational failure and to reform urban school systems before people give up on them The authors examine the effectiveness of three reform approaches systems reform mayoral influence and external state or federal intervention using case studies from seven large cities as well as state and national trends The social and economic transformation of large American cities after World War II laid the seeds for the crisis in urban education that has festered and grown since the 1950s Decades of appalling test scores and failure rates and of unsuccessful piecemeal efforts to improve urban education have led the public and policymakers to embrace radical solutions to reform Three approaches to the reform of urban school governance are discussed and analyzed using data from seven large cities Baltimore Boston Chicago Los Angeles Philadelphia Washington D C and New York national trends and a statewide analysis of Maryland's school accountability system The first approach systems reform focuses on improving the governance of urban education by overcoming policy fragmentation through standards for student performance student assessments and accountability among other things Strong mayoral roles offer a second reform approach that largely reverses the Progressive era reforms of the last century separating schools from city politics Its supporters believe urban mayors can restore accountability stability and political support for urban schools The third reform approach assumes that external intervention by federal or state authorities is needed to restore accountability and improve system performance

Self-Reflective Renewal in Schools Bradley S. Portin, Lynn G. Beck, Michael Knapp, Joseph Murphy, 2003-02-28 The primary purpose of this study is to learn from the experiences of schools across the U S that are engaged in a largely process oriented reform strategy Schools vary in their capacity for productive self reflection The authors examine the process of self assessment that many schools engaged in during this time of widespread public attention to the equality of schools The schools examined in these cases reveal a complex interaction between the nature of the self reflective activity the schools were engaged in in this case a National Education Association school review process entitled KEYS to Success in Schools the contexts that shape the school and the readiness on the part of school staff to engage in systematic reflection around issues that affect teaching and learning The act of self reflection in schools may not provide by itself a source of new ideas alternative models and a sense of what might be possible for the school to accomplish Some external agent can often provide the impetus for or constrain the actions of school staffs in examining their programs and capacity for renewal The acts and outcomes of self reflection are inevitably guided and or constrained by various contexts including the school's history culture structure and supports and pressures provided from communities districts and states

Transnational Southeast Asia Hannah Ming Yit Ho, Ying-kit Chan, 2025-04-19 This open access book presents Southeast Asia as an interesting and conceptually meaningful site to interrogate the transnational paradigm In featuring research from and across different nations in Southeast Asia it asks in what ways Southeast Asia lends itself to nuanced applications of transnationalism and what the wider cultural and collective implications of that might be Instead of viewing the past and the present as oppositional concepts of time a temporal continuum is applied to a time space compression that is fundamental to the workings of the transnational paradigm in the region that we call Southeast Asia The transnational paradigm a conceptual tool encompassing various configurations of transnationalism across disciplines becomes relevant for analysing global cultural flows but not without due consideration of the nuances shaped by spatio temporal trends A paradigm shift in transnationalism from historical connections to contemporary connectivity is afforded by increased mobility and accelerated cultural flows which have given rise to unprecedented economic productivity in the past century and digital connectivity in the new millennium a shift that the chapters collectively explore Relevant to advanced students and scholars across disciplines in the humanities and social sciences focused on Southeast Asia this book is a timely exploration that unpicks and unpacks this long discussed aspect within Asian area studies
