

DEVELOPMENT OF ADULT EDUCATION IN INDIA 1951-2001

Dr. B.S. Vasudeva Rao

The need for adult education evolved and unfolded itself with the realization of the fact that it is the key to the future progress of mankind (Roy 1967). While this is common, which the world as such a country like India, with all its manifestations of socio-economic and technical backwardness has no other way but to take a serious view of the need of adult education and to implement it as a priority programme. It is the realization, Government of India besides strengthening formal education system that led to the launching of number of schemes to eradicate illiteracy in India.

Post-Independence Development:

Formal efforts started emerging in the field of adult education with the promotion of popular ministries in the provinces. The popular governments accorded public recognition to adult education and identified it as a definite responsibility of government. (Bordia,1973). Subsequently the Central Advisory Board of Education appointed an adult education committee strongly recommended for serious effort in adult education and declared "No government can make any appreciable headway with its schemes for promotion of socio-economic welfare of its people unless the people are prepared to meet the government halfway and offer it responsive cooperation. This responsive cooperation is only possible when people possess some amount of education". (Nurullah and Naik, 1951).

After the emergence of India as an Independent country, the concept of adult education underwent significant changes. It was not only due to variety of socio-economic and political development within India but also the overseas influence which played no less significant part. Under various bilateral and multi lateral agreements, India received both technical and financial support from a number of countries. It was changing policies of the government of India that served to have influenced the transformation of the concept of adult education from basic literacy into Civil Literacy by 1950's and further to functional literacy by 1960's with the introduction of the National Adult Education programmes in 1978, the focus of adult education shifted to conscientization and development. The launching of the National Literacy Mission in 1988, and the subsequently emergence of Total Literacy campaigns in different parts of India led to the

also discusses a range of attempts undertaken to bridge the education divide. Subsequently the book has attempted in providing a socio technical framework towards optimally deploying social technologies for addressing the issue of education divide of marginalized communities. The proposed framework offers a transition from traditional content centric teacher centric and centralized education ecosystem to a connection centric learner centric and decentralized education ecosystem of the socio digital age. It demonstrates how Internet enabled digital platforms based on the principles of sharism and mass collaboration using social technologies could help to solve one of the greatest problems facing the world mitigating the extant education divide by delivering quality education to underprivileged sections of society. The book also presents empirical validation of the proposed framework to show how a community driven blended learning platform can mobilize the dormant knowledge capital of domain experts to teach underprivileged rural Indian children as well as help form communities of practice to enable lifelong learning for the rural adult population. The book closes by pointing out the challenges involved in building an equitable education ecosystem using social technologies and ultimately the possibility of creating a fair and equitable society. Given its scope the book offers a valuable resource for researchers, policymakers and practitioners in the domain of education who want to transform education ecosystems by using technological and process related innovations to improve educational practices for underprivileged sections of society. Library of Congress

Catalog Library of Congress, 1960 Advancing the Global Agenda for Human Rights, Vulnerable Populations, and Environmental Sustainability Mary V. Alfred, Petra A. Robinson, Elizabeth A. Roumell, 2021-10-01 For over 70 years the United Nations has worked to advance human conditions globally through its historic agenda for a more peaceful prosperous and just world. Through the work of the General Assembly and other programs like the UNESCO World Conferences on Adult Education the organization has taken a leading role in bringing world leaders together to dialogue on world issues and to set agendas for advancing social and economic justice among and within the regions of the world. The underlying themes of the United Nations agenda over the years have been world peace economic justice addressing the needs of the world's most vulnerable populations and protecting the environment. We draw from the two last two declarations from which the Millennium Development Goals September 2000 and the Sustainable Development Goals September 2015 were adopted by world leaders with a focus on addressing the needs of the most vulnerable populations. In this declaration world leaders committed to uphold the long standing principles of the organization and to combat extreme poverty hunger disease illiteracy environmental degradation and discrimination and violence against women. The overall objective of the book is to highlight the conditions of vulnerable populations from various contexts globally and the role adult and higher education can play and is playing in advancing the United Nations agenda of social and economic justice and environmental sustainability. Adult education through research teaching and service engagements is contributing to this ongoing effort but as many scholars have noted our work remains invisible and undocumented. Therefore this book highlights adult education's critical partnership in addressing these global issues It will also begin to fill the void that exists in adult education literature on internationalization of the field Integral Education Sean Esbjörn-Hargens,Jonathan Reams,Olen

Gunnlaugson,2010-08-01 The educational challenges being faced today are driving us toward a new step in the evolution of educational theory and practice Educators are called to go beyond simply presenting alternatives to integrating the best of mainstream and alternative approaches and taking them to the next level Integral Education accomplishes this by bringing together leading researchers and practitioners from higher education who are actively exploring the frontiers of education from an integral perspective It presents an overview of the emerging landscape of integral education from a variety of theoretical and applied perspectives Key characteristics of integral education include exploring multiple perspectives employing different pedagogical techniques e g reflective dialogical empirical combining conceptual rigor with embodied experience drawing on developmental psychology and cultivating a reflective and transformative space for students and teachers alike Integral Education provides the most comprehensive synopsis of this exciting new approach and serves as a valuable resource for any integral effort within education Second International Handbook of Lifelong Learning

David N. Aspin,Judith D. Chapman,Karen Evans,Richard Bagnall,2012-01-18 The second edition of the International Handbook of Lifelong Learning is extensive innovative and international in scope remit and vision inviting its readers to engage in a critical re appraisal of the theme of lifelong learning It is a thorough going rigorous and scholarly work with profound and wide ranging implications for the future of educating institutions and agencies of all kinds in the conception planning and delivery of lifelong learning initiatives Lifelong learning requires a wholly new philosophy of learning education and training one that aims to facilitate a coherent set of links and pathways between work school and education and recognises the necessity for government to give incentives to industry and their employees so they can truly invest in lifelong learning It is also a concept that is premised on the understanding of a learning society in which everyone independent of race creed or gender is entitled to quality learning that is truly excellent This book recognises the need for profound changes in education and for goals that are critically important to education economic advancement and social involvement To those concerned about the future of our society our economy and educational provision this book provides a richly illuminating basis for powerful debate Drawing extensively on policy analyses conceptual thinking and examples of informed and world standard practice in lifelong learning endeavours in the field both editors and authors seek to focus readers attention on the many issues and decisions that must be addressed if lifelong learning is to become a reality for us all
