Developing Successful Strategic Partnerships With Universities:

Developing Successful Strategic Partnerships with Universities Fiona E. S. Murray, Lars Frølund, Max Riedel, 2017

Collaborations between companies and universities are critical drivers of the innovation economy. These relationships have long been a mainstay of corporate R D from creating the knowledge foundations for the next generation of solutions to serving as an extended workbench to solve short term incremental problems to providing a flow of newly minted talent. As corporations look to open innovation to augment their internal R D efforts many of them are turning to universities to anchor an increasingly broad set of activities especially those grounded in engaging with regional innovation ecosystems such as Silicon Valley Kendall Square in Cambridge Massachusetts and Block 71 in Singapore. Universities are essential stakeholders in innovation communities that also include corporations government entities venture investors and entrepreneurs. In addition to being sources of people and ideas for corporations university collaborations assist corporations in opening up new avenues of engagement with a broader innovation ecosystem. While the aspirations of university industry partnerships can be easily described many companies are finding that establishing and running partnerships effectively can be difficult even when key financial resources and human capital are available. A core reason for the difficulty the authors write is that university culture characterized by high autonomy and distributed governance maps poorly to corporate culture. The authors provide a set of six questions for managers which make up the basis of a form they call the university partnership canvas. They designed a form which is downloadable from the digital version of the article to help corporations assess and develop strategic approaches to their university partnerships. By working through the six questions companies can develop a strategic perspective on what types of partnerships are best suited to their needs. The spectrum goes from what might be seen as an ad hoc approach to a strategic and broader engagement with an innovation ecosystem.
